WHATEVER BUSINESS YOU'RE IN.

The flexibility and modularity of each unit makes IntraUrban McCarthy ideal for a number of business uses. IntraUrban McCarthy has been developed with floorplans specifically tailored toward three types of owners:

Emerging entrepreneurs and business owners who need flexible, open-concept space for light manufacturing, food and beverage businesses, warehouse and distribution, high-tech and creative studios, or similar businesses.

Savvy investors who recognize that the continuing supply/demand imbalance for industrial space within the city presents an excellent opportunity for long-term gains.

Recreational buyers who need convenient, easily-accessible space for their passions and hobbies—whether that be boating, motorcycle repair, furniture design, or other pursuits.

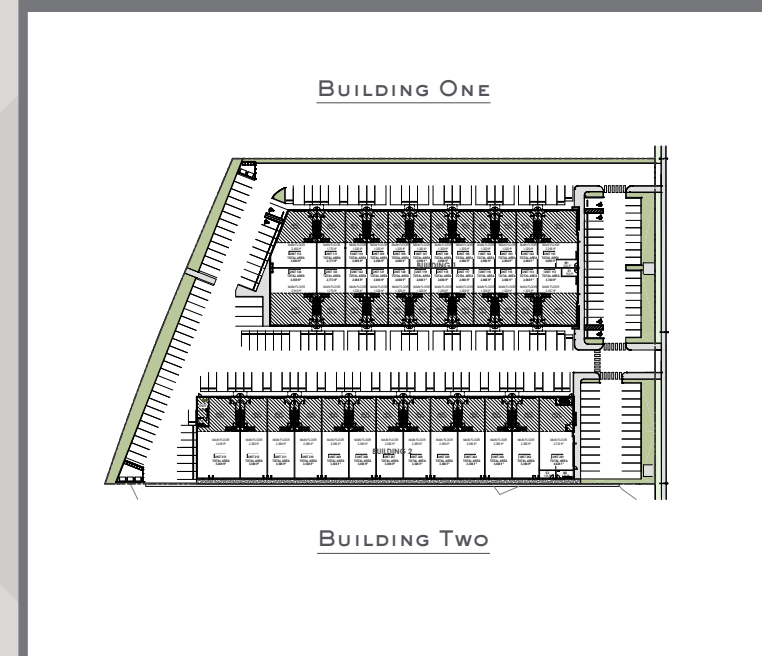

MAXIMUM FLEXIBILITY FOR YOUR BUSINESS.

IntraUrban McCarthy offers owners plenty of flexibility within both buildings. Choose from three distinct floorplans starting from 2,068 sf in building one and 3,388 sf in building 2, or combine multiple units for larger floorplans and multiple bay doors.

SITEPLAN

You could keep on leasing. But why?

Owning a business is never easy. But owning your own space can make it easier. Ownership can be an excellent strategy for building a significant cost advantage over your competition, while securing financial stability and control over your ability to grow and expand.

IntraUrban Enterprise

As the developer behind IntraUrban, PC Urban was the lead builder of the IntraUrban Enterprise development on Dilworth Drive within the downtown core.

Powerhouse

PC Urban was the lead designer and developer for the Powerhouse flex commercial strata development at Packer's Junction.

Demand for industrial space is outstripping supply.

Demand for industrial space in Kelowna continues to grow, while supply continues to be constrained. Owning in a rapidly-growing community with a severe supply/demand imbalance can be a recipe for long-term business success.

Now is the time to build equity.

While past performance is no guarantee of future results, the exponential growth Kelowna has seen in both lease rates and strata valuations make a strong investment case. As the city grows and grows, entrepreneurs and investors with the vision to build equity in new industrial space will likely be handsomely rewarded in the years to come.

KELOWNA INDUSTRIAL MARKET

5 YEAR SNAPSHOT

INTRAUrBAN. REDEFINING INDUSTRIAL.

The first IntraUrban project located near the Marine Gateway business hub in Vancouver sold out prior to completion—the site is now at the centre of a bustling commercial neighbourhood that has grown up around it. Since then, IntraUrban has continued to build on its success with a series of exceptional industrial projects throughout the Lower Mainland, Victoria, and the BC Interior.

As the developer behind IntraUrban, PC Urban has continued to redefine the limits of industrial and commercial property, providing small- and medium-sized businesses with flexible, premium-quality business space that's almost too good to be industrial.
